Zero Universe (ZU)

In the beginning there was nothing.

Because if there was something, then that was not the beginning.

It is not impossible to create something out of nothing, but it is possible for consciousness to appear out of nothing and become aware of self.

Consciousness then created a mirror of itself in order to understand and contrast itself and to explore (like talking to yourself or an imaginary friend)

Consciousness then imagines positive and negative forces that balance as a framework for exploration.

Because it is impossible to imagine something without imagining the opposite.

Consciousness then imagines forces of matter and energy which all have an equal positive and negative aspect, and the Universe was born.

When all the bifurcations are netted, the Universe still equals Zero.
